CITY OF DUBLIN.

To the readers of the 2007 Dublin Community Plan

Ten years ago, Dublin City Council adopted the second major edition of the City's comprehensive plan. The Dublin Community Plan has provided a framework for preserving our heritage as well as preparing for our future since 1988. As we all know, great change can occur in a decade, and your elected representatives determined that the Plan should be updated to appropriately reflect the goals and vision of Dublin's growing community. More than three years have passed since that decision was made, and it has been time well-spent planning for Dublin's future.

A major part of this process involved engaging the community for new ideas to shape the direction of the Plan. The City hosted a series of over twenty significant public meetings with residents and corporate citizens. No less than eighteen Joint Work Sessions were held with City Council and the Planning and Zoning Commission to discuss policy direction and public input throughout the process.

Residents, officials, consultants and staff have worked diligently to craft a Plan that establishes Dublin's major policy objectives and strategies. The 2007 Dublin Community Plan anticipates future needs with respect to land use, parks and open space, transportation, infrastructure and community facilities. Dublin has also worked with experts to use state-of-the-art modeling software to support and verify recommendations made within the Plan. Utilizing land use, transportation, fiscal and utility modeling will ensure that future growth is managed in a way that maintains Dublin's excellent quality of life and superior public services.

The 2007 Dublin Community Plan represents the City's primary planning guide and will be used to evaluate private development requests and make public decisions regarding development, redevelopment, capital improvements, economic incentives and other matters affecting the lives of our residents and corporate citizens. On behalf of the Dublin City Council, I thank everyone who participated and played a role in the creation of this important document which represents the future goals and aspirations of all who call Dublin home.

Sincerely,

Marilee Chinnici-Zuercher
Mayor

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The 2007 Dublin Community Plan was made possible through the efforts and contributions of many different individuals and organizations over three years. Many public meetings were held as part of the planning process and a significant contribution of time and effort was made by area residents and policy makers. The following participants are recognized for their contributions to this comprehensive planning process:

Dublin City Council

The City of Dublin is governed by the Council/Manager form of government, combining the strong political leadership of elected officials with the strong managerial experience of an appointed manager. Under this system, City Council serves as the policy making body in the community, with its members elected to represent the community and to concentrate on policy issues that are responsive to citizens' needs and wishes. Council members elect a Mayor and Vice Mayor from their ranks to serve a two-year term. The City Manager is appointed by Council to carry out long-range policies and to provide for the day-to-day operation of the City.
